VOICE CLONING

Imagine answering your phone and hearing the panicked voice of a loved one. They sound frightened and tell you they have been arrested and need money right away to get out of jail. In a moment of panic, your first instinct may be to help as quickly as possible.

The voice on the line may very well not be real. Scammers easily use videos and audio clips sharing on social media to create convincing AI generated copies of a person's voice. They often use these cloned voices to make phone calls and scam funds. They use emotional scare tactics, time constraints and hard to trace payment methods.

- PAUSE
- Hang up and call them back directly using a known phone number to verify their story.
- Set up a secret code word with close family members-not a pets name.
- Be especially mindful when asked for large amounts of money in an unusual way.

If you are unsure about an email or phone call, talk to a trusted individual and run the scenario by them. Talking it out and verifying through another channel is the best course of action.
